

Executive Biography

David D. Smith is Senior Vice President, Technology.

David is responsible for inspiring innovation and advancing Preferred Mutual's technical infrastructure, applications and data architecture.

He has held several key positions at Preferred Mutual. Prior to his current responsibilities, his leadership was instrumental in creating an organizational structure adept at advancing key investments and initiatives.

David brings to Preferred Mutual expertise in developing competitive advantage through advanced technology solutions.

David has a Bachelor's Degree in Information Systems from the State University of New York Institute of Technology (SUNY Polytechnic Institute).